Words Fitty Spoken.

Mr. Frank Hurd, one of the ablest of the American followers of the Cobden idea, has the fairness and the courage to say that his party "can better afford to lose on the equare issue now raised than to win by a cowardly evasion of it." Any sandsagging and safe blowing, accorto win by a cowardly evasion of it." Any other course would be dishonest, but another course is recommended by those Democrate who prefer auccess to the assistion of principle and who think it possible to hoodwink just once more the people who do the voting.

Well, as we were saying, grim-visaged officers of the law came to lay hold of a fine herd of cattle, when, lo, and behold, the honest granger's wife set up the plea that the cattle were here, being in the direct line of descent from a heifer given to her when the farmer's heart was young and tender. She had accepted the heifer of numerous progeny in place of the traditional betrothal ring. The plea was held to be good, and that honest home was not made sad by the forcible taking away of the lowing heard of so poetic an

It is not every young woman who would prefer a heifer to a diamond ring; yet we venture to suggest to those about to be betrothed that the diamond ring resembles in this respect the melancholy mule, which looks down upon no long line of grateful posterity. It is not insisted that in every case the promising heifer shall take the place of the ring as a pledge of love. There are some households in which a heifer would be a real burden. Where the heifer is practicable, it is as fine an engagement ring as any fair creature can

L. M. Petididier, of the firm of Hoag & Petididier, civil engineers, of this city, landed at Havre, France, January 23. It will be remembered that Mr. Petididier went to his native country to secure a legacy left him, but owing to the fact that he left France some years ago to escape the military laws, he found that he would be arrested and put into the army. The fact that he is a citizen of the United States does not exampt him from this, as there is no agreement about the matter between the two countries. The Paris correspondent says in a letter dated the 18th ult. that Mr. Petididier will no doubt be arrested just as soon as he proclaims himself. His only way is to try and hide in Paris, and after transacting his brainess return to the United States. He will probably, though, rely on his American citizenship to protect him, and in this event, of course, will cause international compileations between the United States and France.
